February 2023

Dear Atlas O Model Railroader,

Happy New Year and welcome to the surprise Atlas O Winter 2023 product offerings. These include opportunities to reserve select Guaranteed Pre-Order Premier rolling stock, and the ability to readily purchase Atlas O's outstanding 21st Century 2 and 3 rail track and accessories, with a complimentary line of trackside buildings, bridges and other structures.

These surprise announcements are being slotted in between Atlas O's previously released major Fall 2022 All Scales Catalog and the coming Spring 2023 Catalog, which the R&D department is surreptitiously working on now, to let you know we haven't forgotten you during the cooler winter months.

These Winter announcements continue the expansion of the Atlas O Premier line with offerings of the PS-2 2-Bay Hopper, Coalporter, and the 40' PS-1 Box Car with 7' Doors. All will be offered in both 3-Rail and 2-Rail configurations, with all new paint schemes. Each is scheduled to arrive in 2023.

In addition, Atlas O is continuing its highly sought after Collectors Series Holiday Cars with the announcement of the "Land of the Free-Home of the Brave" July 4th car and the ghostly "Happy Halloween" car. The Atlas O Collectors Series have quickly gained a reputation for their impressively creative graphics framed by appropriately colorful lights. Be sure to contact your favorite Atlas O authorized dealer to place your guaranteed pre-order for any, or of course all, of these outstanding cars. And don't forget to check out the exclusive 2023 Atlas O Golden Spike Club Reading 2-Bay Offset Hopper found on the back cover. This one of a kind car is available only with deluxe memberships to the GSC.

Last, but not least, this announcement brochure serves as a reminder to all our customers, of the extensive line of Atlas O track, accessories, trackside buildings and other structures that Atlas O has available on a day to day basis. Whether you're rehabilitating an existing layout, or building one from scratch, Atlas O customer service and sales representatives are ready to assist you in whatever way we can to make your layout a reality.

Thank you for your interest in, and support of, Atlas O's exceptional model railroad products,

Dan Waggoner,
Atlas O Senior Sales Rep

Pullman Standard first began its standardized freight car designs with the PS-1 boxcar in 1947. Following that success would be a standard covered hopper – designated PS-2 – shortly thereafter.

The PS-2 offered railroads and private companies alike a car that could be loaded and unloaded quickly and freely interchange between railroads across the country. Although capable of hauling several different commodities, most found their way into single service use so as to avoid a complete cleaning of the interior of the car if different load types were hauled.

The first PS-2s were 34 feet long and had two bays straddling the center sill which supported the car. Air brake equipment was placed in an open area beneath the end sheet and overhanging roof and the sides featured two heavier end posts, and six smaller support posts clustered in groups of three with a larger “panel” in the center of the car. Slope sheets, which direct the load to the hopper doors, were hidden behind the side sheets, making the cars’ capacity look greater than it really was. The design of the end posts, end sheets and other components changed several times over the cars’ lengthy production run, but this general arrangement of parts remained the same and even carried over to larger designs.

The Coalporter is one of the latest evolutions in the more-than-150-year history of the American coal hopper. But technically speaking, it's not a hopper. It's a high-sided gondola, because it lacks the bottom-opening doors that characterize a true hopper. The only way to unload a Coalporter is to turn it upside down, which is exactly what happens at the rotary unloading facilities at factories and power plants served by Coalporter trains.

The Coalporter was developed by Bethlehem Steel Car in 1978, in an effort to create a higher-capacity, more efficient coal car. The traditional bottom hoppers were replaced by twin tubs, or troughs, that filled the space between the trucks. These increased the cubic capacity of the car and gave the added advantage of a lower center of gravity for better tracking. These original Coalporters were steel-bodied, but a drop in aluminum prices in the mid-1980s opened the door to the introduction of the aluminum-bodied BethGon Coalporter in 1985.

The switch to aluminum shaved five tons off the car's weight — meaning that each car could carry five tons of additional payload, or an additional 575 tons of coal in a typical Coalporter unit train. Coalporters generally operate in solid unit trains. One end of each car is equipped with a rotary coupler, to allow a train to be fed through a rotary unloader without uncoupling the cars. Our highly detailed Premier model duplicates this prototype feature and also offers separately added metal grab irons and a removable coal load.

The 40' Boxcar is widely known as one of the most popular freight cars used by railroads as they transitioned from steam to diesel. In particular the Pullman Standard or PS-1 design was one of the most popular and was widely used by North American railroads. Pullman had been making freight cars for more than half a century when it hit a home run with the PS-1. Introduced in 1947, it set the standard for postwar American freight cars.

What made the PS-1 a landmark was its welded construction — an area in which Pullman led the industry. In addition to lighter weight, welding offered superior strength and better resistance to weather and corrosion than contemporary riveted cars.

Like the EMD diesels that became ubiquitous on American railroads, the PS-1 was part of the postwar shift away from customized, railroad-specific locos and cars toward standardized designs produced in large quantities on efficient assembly lines. No wonder the PS-1 was soon followed by the highly successful PS-2 covered hopper, PS-3 open hopper, PS-4 flatcar, and PS-5 gondola.

Atlas is proud to offer a wide variety of track in both 2- and 3-Rail. Our track is time-tested and modeler approved and is crafted to be the MVP of your layout.

Modeled for Realism: The scale-sized plastic ties have a realistic wood grain, the tie plates have spikes, the rail joiners have authentic bolt detail and the center rail is blackened.

Versatility: Every track piece has been specially engineered to fit precisely together in an infinite variety of combinations without the need for custom cutting and fitting.

Performance: We chose a SOLID nickel silver T-rail for extra stability and superior electrical conductivity. In addition, the wide, flat surface of the rails provides far greater wheel/rail contact and better traction than tubular track. What's more, solid rails absorb sound better than tubular track so you can enjoy the sounds of your locomotive.

2-RAIL FEATURES:

- Code 148 Solid Nickel Silver Rail
- American prototype ties and tie spacing with correct spike, and tie plate and bolt details
