ATLAS O PREMIER P-42 GENESIS LOCOMOTIVE GUARANTEED PRE-ORDERS IF PLACED BY WED. 3/30/2022

Amtrak's Genesis was the first newly designed American passenger diesel in nearly four decades. Beginning in 1993, it replaced Amtrak's fleet of EMD F40PH diesels, which were really modified freight engines — designed to be resellable in case Amtrak went out of business.

Unlike most diesels, whose structural strength comes from a heavy frame, the Genesis features monocoque construction, in which the body shell carries much of the load instead of just going along for the ride. This allows for a lighter frame, less weight overall, and greater fuel economy. The Genesis is one-third more powerful than the F40PH it replaced, but burns 22% less fuel. Its height is also 14" shorter than its predecessor, allowing it to travel anywhere Amtrak goes, including the tunnels into Penn Station and Grand Central Station in New York.

To make the body easy to fabricate and repair, the design used only flat surfaces and sections of cylinders and cones; there are no compound curves like those on the "bulldog" nose of older E-units and F-units.

The prototype for this model is Amtrak's P42DC #203, which was built in 2001. The locomotive was re-painted for Operation Lifesaver at Amtrak's Beech Grove, Indiana shops in late 2021 and was unveiled in a ceremony at Washington's Union Station on January 12, 2022. The striking black and yellow paint scheme prominently features Operation Lifesaver's "See Tracks? Think TRAIN!®" campaign slogan. The locomotive will remain in revenue service for Amtrak for the foreseeable future.

ATLAS O PREMIER NORTHEAST STEEL CABOOSE LIMITED AVAILABILITY (ORDERS ARE NOT GUARANTEED.)

Like most pieces of railroad equipment, this caboose was shaped in part by regulatory requirements — in this case, a proposed Pennsylvania law requiring cabooses on through freights to be 8-wheeled and at least 24' long. Based on a wood-sheathed 1920 USRA design, this steel caboose was a 1924 Reading Company design that became so widespread in the mid-Atlantic region that railfans dubbed it the Northeastern Caboose.

Besides the Reading, original owners included the Western Maryland, Lehigh Valley, Central Railroad of New Jersey and several other lines. Through mergers and acquisitions, these “crummies” eventually found themselves in new paint schemes ranging from Chessie System yellow to Conrail blue. Later in life, many went to second and third owners as far afield as Maine, Ohio, Iowa, and Louisiana.

This particular model is a “fantasy scheme” designed in collaboration with Operation Lifesaver to honor their 50th Anniversary.

- Intricately Detailed Durable ABS Body
- Detailed Car Interior
- Brakeman Figure
- Metal Wheels and Axles
- Die-Cast 4-Wheel Trucks
- Operating Die-Cast Metal Couplers
- Colorful, Attractive Paint Schemes
- Fast-Angle Wheel Sets
- Needle-Point Axles
- 1:48 Scale Dimensions
- Caboose Interiors With Overhead Lighting
- Separate Metal Handrails
- Decorative Brake Wheels
- O Scale Kadee Compatible Coupler Mounting Pads
- Unit Measures: 9 1/8" x 2 7/16" x 3 3/4"

D&RGW's "Cookie Box" box cars were used in bakery service for the Bowman Biscuit company bakery (later Keebler) in Denver and traveled throughout the west. These cars featured an eye catching silver paint scheme with black lettering and the stylized "Cookie Box" logo in red. Some cars were painted black on the ends, and a small number were white with black ends. The two road numbers in this release are from the group of cars that received the silver and black scheme.

These cars, 77 in total, were modified by the DRG&W between the late 1950s and early 1960s for their intended bakery service. This included extra insulation to prevent their sweet cargo from freezing. Ultimately the Cookie Box cars were either retired or put into MOW service, lasting into the 1980s.
