PRE-ORDER ANNOUNCEMENTS - FALL 2026

PRE-ORDER DUE DATE:
WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 18TH 2026

October 2026

Dear O Scale Model Railroader,

Welcome to the Atlas O Fall 2026 Locomotive & Passenger Car Catalog! The highlight of this catalog is the long-awaited return of the Atlas Master® O California Zephyr passenger cars—10 years since their last production run. These tremendously successful models return with new paint schemes and new four-car sets, along with back by popular demand car names and numbers. Whether you are starting a Zephyr train or expanding your collection, this is an opportunity you won't want to miss.

Plan your locomotives and passenger cars together. The Atlas Master® O Rio Grande F7 A and B units complement the Zephyr passenger cars, including the Rio Grande Zephyr sets. Atlas Premier O Burlington E8 locomotives offer another attractive choice for your California Zephyr train. Explore locomotives on pages 4-14 and passenger cars on pages 18-30.

You'll also find additional F7 and E8 paint schemes, Amtrak and Wabash passenger-car sets, pedestrian crosswalks and figure sets to bring your O Scale railroad to life.

Pre-orders help Atlas assess demand and plan production quantities. To give yourself the best opportunity to receive the models you want, please place your pre-orders through your authorized Atlas dealer by Wednesday, November 18, 2026. Availability cannot always be guaranteed for orders placed after the deadline.

Atlas continues its series of historic EMD F-unit locomotives with this latest release of the F-7. The mid-1940s found the majority of North American railroads in the process of re-equipping their motive power fleets. The war effort had taken its toll on the steam locomotive and the rail lines were now looking at the diesel newcomer which had proven itself during World War II. At the forefront was General Motors with their E and F series of passenger and freight locomotives. This series of models focuses on the year 1947, and highlights the motive power direction of some of America's most well-known railways. These locos also feature some of the most colorful paint schemes ever applied to freight and passenger locomotives.

Amtrak (Phase II) A Unit

BUILD YOUR AMTRAK-ERA ZEPHYR TRAIN

Complement these Amtrak E8 locomotives with the Amtrak California Zephyr four-car sets on page 26. Set ordering: pages 29-30.

In the mid-1930's, as the Electro-Motive Division of General Motors was trying to interest railroads in diesel passenger power, there was a lot of experimentation in exterior design. Looking at EMD's worm-like yellow and brown Union Pacific M-10000, its gleaming stainless steel Burlington Zephyr, or the boxy, just-plain-ugly early Santa Fe units, it's apparent that here was a new function looking for its form. The first generation of road diesels found its form in 1937 when the initial E-units, built for the B&O, inaugurated the classic "covered wagon" cab unit design that would last for two decades on both freight and passenger diesels.

The earliest E-units were each virtually custom-made, with less than 20 units produced of models EA through E5. The prewar E6 was the first mass-produced passenger diesel and the last to sport the rakish, streamlined EMD nose so characteristic of the 1930s. After the war, the new E7 adopted the "bulldog" nose introduced earlier on the FT freight diesel. With the rollout of the E8 in 1949, the E-unit, America's most popular passenger diesel, reached its final visual form – just in time for the last hurrah of the American passenger train.

The passenger cars return after 10 years! Explore the California Zephyr sets on page 27.

Wabash A Unit

COMPLETE YOUR WABASH BLUE BIRD TRAIN

Pair this E8 with the Wabash Blue Bird four-car set on page 28.

With twin motors to ensure reliability and six-wheel trucks that rode like a Cadillac, the E8 was an engineer's dream. For hoggers who had not long ago worked in steam locomotives, the clean cab of an E-unit with its lofty, panoramic view of the road ahead was not hard to get used to.

As the operational lifetime of the E8 locomotive covered from the early 1950s through the 1980s in many cases, several changes were made to their appearance during rebuilds, such as removal of the distinctive "Portholes" when the side panels began to rust through. This run of E8s features all-new tooling to replicate these "smoothsided" variations where appropriate for owners like Amtrak, who relied heavily on these locomotives in the early 1970s.

A Detailed Look Behind

Atlas Master® O F7 Locomotive - Lehigh Valley Railroad

Jim Weaver Photo, Atlas Model Railroad slide collection

The Lehigh Valley Railroad ordered fourteen EMD F7 locomotives from EMD between 1950-1951, consisting of eight F7A cab units and six F7B booster units. The A-units were assigned even numbers through the range of 560-574 and the odd numbers were assigned to the B units. Delivered in the distinctive Cornell Red paint scheme with three black stripes, the F7s became an important part of the Lehigh Valley's diesel-era image.

The F7s represented the railroad's final purchase of enclosed cowl hooded locomotives. The Lehigh Valley's F7s were intended to operate in A-B-B-A sets, although things rarely go as planned on any railroad. The F7s initially operated in solid sets through the 1950s, while in the 1960s and early 1970s it was common to see a singular F7 mixed with Alcos and General Electric locomotives.

The F7s outlasted the railroad's earlier FTs and F3s as well as its Alco FA locomotives. The first F7s were retired in the late 1960s, while the final pair, Nos. 562 and 572, remained in service until 1972. Those last locomotives were traded to EMD in December 1972 as part of the Lehigh Valley's acquisition of GP38-2s.

The Atlas offering of these handsome Lehigh Valley F7s is of the Tuscan scheme, seen during the final years of service mid-1960s to the early-1970s. Each of the Tuscan F7s had minor paint scheme variations which are reflected on our models as well.

Atlas Master O California Zephyr Dome Observation Car - Delaware Otsego System

Matt Mocekis slide collection, Photographer unknown

The Delaware Otsego No. 505 was originally built by the Budd Company in 1947 as Chicago, Burlington & Quincy (CB&Q) #360, Silver View. The stainless-steel observation car was part of the famed Twin Cities Zephyr fleet and was nearly identical to the California Zephyr dome observation cars. Featuring a distinctive dome, parlor seating, and an observation lounge. Following the end of its Burlington service, the car became Amtrak No. 9300 before being retired in 1976.

The car was subsequently acquired by Delaware Otsego and placed in service on the Cooperstown & Charlotte Valley Railroad as #5 and was named the "Great Sacandaga". In 1984, it was transferred to the Delaware Otsego-owned New York, Susquehanna & Western Railway and renumbered #505. The car continued to serve as a distinctive business and excursion car, until sold to a private owner.

In 2022 the car was acquired by the Oregon Depot Museum in Oregon, Illinois. Where it is being restored to its former Burlington #360 Silver View appearance.

Originally operated by CB&Q, D&RGW and WP, The California Zephyr was considered to be the pinnacle of design, comfort and luxury of the late 1940s. Its inaugural run on March 12, 1949, attended by politicians, hollywood stars, and corporate executives, spared no expense. The Zephyr presented each inaugural female passenger with an exotic corsage of silver and orange orchids flown in from Hilo, Hawaii.

Marketed to families as "a vacation unto itself", luxury is obviously an important part of the Zephyr's lasting allure. Each car was adorned with intricate oil paintings, carved linoleum and etched glass. Radio service was also provided throughout the train with an allowance of thirty-four different broadcasting stations. Various lighting elements were meticulously designed for optimal ambiance and comfort; fluorescent lighting was provided in all common spaces and incandescent reading lamps were installed in each roomette and over each seat, as well as in restrooms, vestibules and passageways. The dome lighting's intensity was specifically designed to decrease as you ascended -- not only to create an air of elegance -- but also to allow glare-free night viewing by the passengers. Elevating the notion of travel luxury were the famed "Zephyrettes", specially selected train hostesses that filled mostly any role to help make the trip both memorable and relaxing -- from babysitting to organizing social activities.

Throughout its twenty-one year run, the California Zephyr ran with cars of mixed ownership split between the three railroads. This mixed consist depended mostly on what cars were available at the terminals rather than the railroad it was operating on at the time. Its final run was completed on March 22, 1970. Today, the stainless steel cars of the original California Zephyr are extremely popular with private collectors and several operate in charter service through Amtrak.

California Zephyr Features:

- True-scale dimensions and details
- Selectable interior lighting--choose either track or self-contained battery power
- Full-scale length cars, approx. 21.3" over diaphragms
- Accurate representation of the stainless-steel corrugations and welding seams
- Realistic aluminum finish
- Full interior details and interior LED lighting
- Full underbody details
- Working diaphragms
- Sprung die-cast trucks
- Recommended curves: 0-72 Diameter (3-Rail), 40.5" Radius (2-Rail)

The Atlas Parts and Service Promise

Atlas products are built to last, and we stand behind them with service and ongoing parts support for both current and legacy models.

For decades, Atlas has designed model railroad products with long-term ownership in mind. That commitment extends beyond the initial purchase—supporting serviceability, repairs, and restoration through extensive replacement parts availability and ongoing customer support.

Whether maintaining a favorite locomotive or restoring a long-owned piece, Atlas is committed to keeping your railroad running.

Our Promise in Practice

- Products designed for durability and serviceability
- Ongoing service and extensive replacement parts support
 - Support for both current and legacy Atlas models
- A long-standing commitment to customer continuity
